Solid Division: Black solid, ghost spots may be visible.
Silver/Shaded Division: Black spots on a clear silver body; black smoke.

PATTERN: Random spotted or solid. Preference given to random spot pattern with some short horizontal bars on the shoulders, spot pattern on shoulders and hips extending down the legs and black rings around the tail.

OTHER:
Balance: Square build with level top line.
Condition: Well-muscled.
Temperament: Confident. Must be unchallenging.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION: The ideal Serengeti Cat is a medium sized cat with long legs. It should be in excellent physical condition, very strong and muscular. It should appear as a powerful, squarely built cat with a very upright posture. Also noticeable is the long powerful neck, which blends into the base of the skull without tapering. The head should be a medium wedge with large round eyes and carry huge upright ears. In shape the head is a modified wedge, starting at the nose and flaring out in a straight line to base of ears forming a triangle with a slight break at the whiskers. Cheeks should not be prominent. In profile there is a long, straight line from the top of the head to the bridge of the eyes, then turning down approximately 30 degrees and continuing in a straight line to the tip of the nose with a very slight eyebrow ridge. The muzzle is fine but strong with no muzzle break. From the front view the whisker pads are moderately prominent. The chin is strong and lines up with tip of nose in the same vertical plane, neither receding nor excessively massive. The head is longer than it is wide. Strikingly large ears, equal to the length of the head, are one of the main features of the Serengeti. They are conical with rounded tips. Wide at base with a deep bell, the ears are set upright and close together on the top of the head. The eyes are also an important characteristic of the Serengeti. They should be large and round, neither protruding nor recessed. Much more than an eye width apart and separated by a broad nose. Gold is the preferred eye color, followed by any shade of yellow through copper. Green and amber permitted. The Serengeti is generally a spotted cat. Preference given to random spot pattern with some short horizontal bars on the shoulders, spotting extending down the shoulders and hips on to the legs and black rings around the tail. Two-toned spots (rosettes) are not to be rewarded. Solid black and black smoke Serengetis need to have exceptional type in order to compete successfully against the spotted cats. They should have a gentle, confident, outgoing and alert temperament.

ALLOWANCES: Green or amber eye color permitted. Locket on throat or small spot in groin not to exceed ½" in diameter.

PENALIZE: Spots tending towards bars on side of body; two-toned (rosetted) spots; heavy ticking; small ears; short legs.

WITHOLD ALL AWARDS (WW):
White tail tip, toes or white anywhere on the body except for small locket described above. Blue eyes.

DISQUALIFICATION (DQ):
Miniaturization.

* All breeds must to present a unchallenging temperament; the cat may show fear, seek to flee, or may complain aloud, but may not threaten to hurt. Any sign of definite threat shall disqualify.
Disqualifications: a cat that bites, a cat that shows evidence to deceive, adult whole males with not two descended testicles, cats with parts or whole tail missing or with tails faults (except the approved breeds), polydactyl cats (except the approved breeds), crossed eyes, total blindness, smaller size for the breed, depression of the sternum or usually small diameter of the rib cage itself.
